CHRISTENING OF WILDERLEIGH

Attracts a Large Number of Prominent Society People.—The House Beautifully Decorated.

Wilderleigh, the hospitable home of Mrs. Jessie Wilder, Mr. and Mrs. M. Huston, Miss Wilder and Mr. and Mrs. Hummel, was the scene of a brilliant gathering of the elite of the city yesterday afternoon, the occasion being the christening of their new home, Wilderleigh.

The whole lower floor was thrown into one room and was beautifully and artistically decorated with evergreens and exquisite roses.

On entering the dwelling the ladies of the house received the guests as they arrived most graciously and they were made to feel literally at home, all formality and stiffness being entirely eliminated.

Punch was served in a tastefully arranged alcove in the reception hall and in the dining room more substantial refreshments were partaken of by the guests. Here Mrs. Seelye presided over the coffee and Mrs. W. H. Davis over the tea, assisted by Misses Clark, Atwood, Wilson and others.

During the reception the guests were most enjoyably entertained by a vocal and instrumental program under the able direction of Mr. Blount and Mrs. Moore.

Many of the intimate friends of the family were shown over the dwelling which is handsomely arranged and beautifully finished.

Nearly 300 invitations were issued for this function which was largely attended, the ladies being handsomely gowned and marks an epoch in the social life of the city.

On departing, the guests wished their entertainers many felicitous blessings of long life and happiness.

Mayor's Court

Edna Howard was up before the Mayor this morning charged with forcibly taking a watch from Mary Hamer, both of whom are colored. It seems that Edna gave the watch to Mary some time ago and lately demanded its return; upon refusal she took the watch and in the scuffle struck the woman. He was fined $5 and costs.

Henry McCoy, colored, was fined $3 and costs for drunkenness and spent the night at Hotel de Zuber.

There will be a literary contest at the high school building next Friday afternoon, March 10th, at one o'clock. All interested are invited. The judges will be chosen from the citizens of Daytona.

SIGNS OF POISON.

That a Sudden Flow of Mouth Water May Indicate.

Dr. Trail mentions the fact that a family that was attacked with a "water rage," incomprehensible until investigation revealed the fact that a lot of horse-dish in their kitchen garden had got mixed with some acornic herbs.

The sudden flow of saliva betrays the effect of some metallic poison, lead perhaps or verdigris oxide of copper, and suggests the examination of copper cooking utensils. Old fashioned silver spoons were often initiated with plated copper and in course of time furnished a clue to their bottom facts by turning black, then black with greenish tints, but only after their secret had been intimated by a spitting epidemic. It is the same with lead. Chewing a leaden bullet for a couple of seconds makes the "mouth water"—not as a hint as a desire for additional supplies, but to rinse out the palate and remove saliva that might cause mischief by finding its way into the stomach.

A decorative painter who never touched such things as Paris green or emerald without disinfecting his hands and mouth was greatly puzzled by the morbid activity of his salivary glands. He had to spit like a tobacco fiend and finally traced his trouble to a substance known as "bronze dust" that had settled on his lips and nostrils and, under the influence of moisture, had been developing copper poisons.

Paris green not rarely gets blown like dust all over the fields it is supposed to protect from insect plagues; then, moistened by dew or drizzling rain, forms a paste and clings to vegetable substances, where its presence is never suspected, till their consumers complain of colic and mouth water.—What To Eat.

CORPSE RINGS.

What They Are and Why They Are Worn by Sailors.

"Corpse rings, eh?" said the visitor.

"It's a curious, a gruesome, name. What are corpse rings?"

"Corpse rings," the collector answered, "are rings found on the bodies of drowned sailors—identification rings. Look at this thick gold one. Running around it on the outside, you see, there is carved in big, plain letters 'William Rutline, born in Camden, Me., 1865. Home, Mahabar.' Rutline was lost off the Needles in the big storm of 1897. Mahabar was communicated with, but it appeared that he had no relatives there.

"Nearly every sailor when the blues overtake him imagines he will die of drowning. He lures to think of his body washing up on a strange shore, of his homeless grave and of the anxiety of his friends when he doesn't return and no news comes of him, and therefore he buys himself an identification or corpse ring.

"Some of these rings are costly, beautiful, strange. Here is an antique Egyptian one, a ring of green bronze from a rifled tomb. Here is a wooden one, carved with little demons, for the thumb. It came, I think, from Senegambia. This ring of ivory is Japanese. It is of beautiful workmanship. The monkeys, holding each other's tails, that go around it in a circle, are quite perfect."—Baltimore Herald.

Generous. Mrs. Green—John, this isn't a very good umbrella you've brought back today.

Mr. Green—I know it, but we had that gold handled one a long time. Let some one else have it awhile. It wasn't ours anyway.—Detroit Free Press.
